Certificates to Be Delivered To-day to Appointees in New York City.

SELECTED BY GOVERNOR

Executive Advised by War Committee of the Bar Association.

Certificates of designation as Governappeal agents, signed by the ment appeal agents, signed by the Adjutant-General by command of the Governor, will be delivered by the postman to-day to 189 attorneys in this city. In selecting them the Governor was assisted by suggestions from the war committee of the bar of the city of New York, whose work is carried on at 40 Wall street and 39 Pine street under the direction of its executive secretary, Mountfort Mills

The selective service regulations require The selective service regulations require that a Government appeal agent shall be designated for each of the 189 divisions in the city. Their powers and duties are distinct and different from those of the 189 legal advisory boards whose appointment was announced Friday.

Government appeal agents, according Mr. Mills, will act as attorneys of to Mr. Mills, will act as attorneys or advisers both to the registrant and the local and district boards. It will be the duty of the appeal agent to see that a registrant is placed in the proper classification. If through his ignorance he places himself in Class A when he should be in Class B or a further deferred classification, the Government appeal agent acts to place him where he belongs. The appeal agent also will see to it that no local board is imposed upon by the claims of a registrant. He may the claims of a registrant. main with her.

They may take a brief recess to go home for Christmas, but when Speaker Clark and Vice-President Marshall drop their gavels January 3 the eye of suffrage in the persons of Mrs. Catt and her faithful forty-eight will be right on the proceedings on the hill.

Southern Congressmen and the National Woman Sufrage Association is resolved to show them that the women of the South are behind the demand for universal suffrage. This campaign is being conducted on the same principle as the New York campaign. There the women of each election district argued and wrestled and prayed with the men of their respective districts. Here the women of each State, each Congressional district, deal separately with the men who represent their districts.

Whether or not the Southern suffragists who are attending this convention represent the mass of feminine opinion of that part of the country, they are a strong band and they are fighting mad. When women like Kate Waller Barrett, head of the National Florence crittenden Mission, a most telling speaker, who has been selected by Government officials to inspect the cantonments in various States—when women like this get up, as she did yesterday, and pledge their time from now till the passage of the amendment to pushing that amendment it mass a large lady by the name of Miss Foss.

Wild rumors to the effect that Senator Tillman of South Carolina had "come round" and that Vardaman was weakening spread among the suffs today, but, chased down, the rumors turned out to have little foundation. As a matter of fact, the gentlemen on the hill are so fussed over this matter that some of them say one thing one day and another thing the next, But some of them are solid as the rock the Pilgrims landed on.

Big Boas Mary Garrett Hay of New York city, who gave it as her absolute belief to-day that the amendment would pass, says that not a New York man in Congress has asserted to the women that he would vote against it. The vote will not be complete, for La Guardia is in Europe, Pitzgerald—supposed to be opposed—is resigning and the delay in the vote will deprive the suffrage of two friends. Bruckner of The Broux and Griffin of Brooklyn, who are resigning to take other offices. But the New York suffs declare that they have positive assurance that the great part of the "fitty to follow the world look for the world look for catch of last year.

Mrs. George Bass of Chicago said this afternoon that Illinois women are were of all but one of their twenty-eight men in Congress. The two Senators are all right. Arkansas is solid—seven Representatives and two Senators. The satisfied air of those Arkansas women as they go around here boasting that their men do whatever they want to is simply maddening to the suffs from Mississippi and Alabama and other benighted States.

Rachel Foster Avery, who was an officer in the N. A. W. S. A. thirty years and has worked on Congress since Susan B. Anthony's time, says there is not "one B. Anthony's time, says there is not "one chance in a hundred that the amendment will fail." Asked why if they are so confident they are making careful plans to defeat for reelection the opposing Congressmen "in case the amend-ment failed," they reply that these are the wise precautions of old campaigners and that in any event they must keep their wheels well greased for the job of setting the ratifications through.

The real reason so many Southern Congressmen are against having women vote, according to the suffs. is that they object to having their wives and mothers and sisters with the stream of sisters. object to having their wives and mothers and sisters rubbing elbows with negro women at the polls. It appears to be a racial objection based on social considerations and so the suffs hope it will melt away. Cantrill of Kentucky, a member of the Rules Committee and a strong party man—Democratic, of course—is for the amendment. So is Stone of Missouri, and so are Austin and Sims of Tennessee, and so day by day bright suffrage spots appear in the black belt.

There is a strong representation from the South in this group, just as there is a larger number than ever before on the national board.
